

SOAPkidz joins the Friends of Colbyn Wetlands
Karen Hauptfleisch
2015/02/07

“Partnering” with the Colbyn Wetlands group to celebrate World Wetlands day turned out to be a great adventure and this will definitely become an annual event. Although the bus driver got a ‘bit’ lost and arrived 90 minutes late, the kids enjoyed the day and the presenter’s passion was contagious.

The children learned how wetlands function and how to protect them. They also tested the water. All and all, another great day in Africa

Building a Wetland

Exploring in the Wetlands

Happy children!

Feedback from a caregivers:

Themba: It was a great event indeed. I personally find it interesting being part of it and how the programme was done. The topics covered under wetlands were so helpful. A big thank you to everyone who invited us in the activities of the day. Our kids really enjoyed it.

Feedback from the children:

Zandile: Well, we did learn many things and we did enjoy ourselves and it was nice meeting different people and getting more information on how to rebuild and how to keep our environment clean and healthy and learning about different trees and different seeds and how to save water. Well, we did enjoy ourselves a lot cause now we have data to share to our school friends.

Anele: Well learn many and I am ready to go back to my school and share the information I have Dudu: What I've learned to day got me thinking that I should respect nature and all the tiny little things that are in there. And I also learn that there are alien trees that are in wetland. And also the insect and how can we modify a poor condition and good condition of rivers. Although we got lost.

Merry: When a river is in a good state of health, a wide range of the animals and plants and natural processes will be present

Dimpho: The trip was nice and I enjoy every moment of it. I learned about different animals in water the worm and camp

Gladys: It was nice even though it was a long journey and I respect all the people who preserve nature.

Xolani: I learn about different group of spieces and water and walk around and see different trees aliens and bird and also soil.

Lindokuhle: My day was good and we really enjoyed the lesson and that will also help us to do our school work

Mahlangu: They treat us very well and all we learned was great for us to have.

Masombuka: We enjoyed the lessen and they treated us very well and thanks to SOAPkidz

Zinhle: I had a great day. I learned a lot especially that we should take care of the environment